1. Lance Corporal Frank Dawson-Smith Hallamshire Rifles (later commissioned Lieutenant in the Oxford & Buckinghamshire Light Infantry). In 1914 Frank married Lavinia Dakin (sister of John Dakin mentioned above) of Netherside, Bradwell when he was a school master at Derwent House School, Bamford. He was the son of Rev Charles and Mrs Katie Dawson-Smith of Nash Rectory, Stony Stratford which may explain the regiment he finally joined. Frank was still serving in the Army in 1920 as an officer in the 5th African Rifles in Jubaland (now part of Somalia) when it was reported that the troops he was commanding mutinied and murdered him. Accordingly Frank's grave (which is now in Wajar Cemetery, Kenya) is noted by the Commonwealth War Graves Commission as among those of the war dead. News of Frank's death appears to have arrived too late for his name to be inscribed on the Bradwell Memorial. Nevertheless when the memorial was unveiled by Colonel Herbert Brook Taylor Lavinia placed a posy in memory of her husband. Another newspaper report stated that Frank included in his ancestors the Governor of St Helena when Napoleon was held there.
2. 26697 Driver William Goddard Royal Engineers. In 1911 William was a 33 year old widower living in Calver with his three children his wife having died soon after the birth of their third child. By 1915 he had remarried and was living on Church Street, Bradwell. His occupation in 1911 was said to be 'cab proprietor' and a newspaper report of 1915 said he had been a driver for Drs Lee and Brooks of Eyam before enlisting. In 1916 his second wife Margaret (née Hoskin) received a copy of letter to him by Major-General William Lambton commander of the British 4th Division in France which said 'Your Commanding Officer and Brigade Commander have informed me that you have distinguished yourself by your conduct in the field'.
